

CONTRIBUTORS

Siddharth Chandra is Professor of Economics and Director of the Asian Studies Center at Michigan State University. His research interests include behavior and policy relating to addictive substances, the intersection of economics, health, and history in Asia, and applications of portfolio theory to fields outside finance, for which the theory was originally developed.

Julia Christensen is a doctoral student in public affairs at Michigan State University, where she studies international security, human security, political economy, health care policy, and education policy. She serves as a member of the Human Relations Commission of the City of East Lansing.

Dennis O. Flynn is Alexander R. Heron Distinguished Professor of Economics, Emeritus, at the University of the Pacific. He has published since 1978 dozens of essays on global monetary history, fifteen of which have been reproduced in World Silver and Monetary History in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries (Variorum, 1996). He has co-edited Metals and Monies in an Emerging Global Economy (Variorum 1997), European Entry into the Pacific: Spain and the Acapulco-Manila Galleons (Variorum, 2001), Studies in Pacific History: Economics, Politics, and Migration (Ashgate, 2002), and Studies in Global Monetary History, 1470–1800 (Ashgate, 2002). He is co-General Editor of a 19-volume series, The Pacific World: Lands, Peoples, and History of the Pacific, 1500–1900 (Variorum/Ashgate, 2001–2004).

Patrick Manning is Andrew W. Mellon Professor of World History, Emeritus, at the University of Pittsburgh. From a base in African economic history he became a world historian focusing on demography, migration, and overviews of world history. His recent books include The African Diaspora: A History through Culture (Columbia University Press, 2009) and Big Data in History (Palgrave Pivot, 2013). He served as President of the American Historical Association during calendar 2016.

Ruth Mostern is Associate Professor of History and Director of the World History Center at the University of Pittsburgh. She received her Ph.D. in History from University of California, Berkeley in 2003 with a specialty in Chinese History. She is author of Dividing the Realm in Order to Govern: The Spatial Organization of Song China, 960–1276 CE (Harvard University Asia Center, 2011) and co-editor of Placing Names: Enriching and Integrating Gazetteers (Indiana University Press, 2016).

Qiyao Wang is a fifth-year doctoral student in the Department of Statistics at the University of Pittsburgh. Before arriving in Pittsburgh, she received her Bachelor of Science degree from Wuhan University in China. She served as a graduate student researcher in the CHIA project, World History Center, working on silver data and African slave population projects. Her dissertation focuses on creating statistical test procedures in the field of functional data analysis.

Volume 3-4, No. 1 (2016-2017) | ISSN 2169-0812 (online)

DOI 10.5195/jwhi.2017.48 | <http://jwhi.pitt.edu>

Articles in this journal are licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 United States License.

This journal is published by the University Library System of the University of Pittsburgh as part of its D-Scribe Digital Publishing Program and is cosponsored by the University of Pittsburgh Press.